This is a black and white street map of a residential area in St. Louis, Missouri. The map shows a grid of streets including W. Woodrupp Ave., W. Twelfth St., W. Eleventh St., W. Tenth St., W. Ninth St., W. Eighth St., W. Seventh St., W. Sixth St., W. Fifth St., W. Fourth St., W. Third St., W. Second St., and W. First St. Numerous individual houses are depicted as simple outlines with their addresses labeled. Key features include Baker Lake, which is a large body of water located between W. Eighth St. and W. Ninth St.; several parks such as H. H. H. Park, S. H. H. Park, and S. H. H. Park; and various commercial buildings or public structures marked with symbols like a cross or a circle. The map also shows the locations of several schools, including St. Ann's School, St. Mary's School, and St. Joseph's School. The overall layout is typical of a city planning document from the early 20th century.

The traffic control plan for which these booths were designated was replaced in a few years, and the booths were removed. The precise date has not been determined, but the present booth (S 82) was put into use in the summer of 1974.
